Dear George:

C. D. Jackson, who recently returned from your part of the world, told me how very helpful you had been to him. We all greatly appreciate this. C. D. is doing a splendid job and it is quite likely that his Committee may have an increasing amount of contact with your part of the world.

As you probably know, I am down in Washington now and a good share of my time is devoted to affairs of mutual interest.

Sincerely yours,
